

Norwegian Post Office chooses StepStone E-recruitment solution to manage its 25,000 employees

London, UK / Oslo, Norway: 23 November 2009 – StepStone, a global leader in talent management solutions, has announced that Norway's Posten (Post Office) has selected StepStone e-recruitment to underpin, manage and enable a professional recruitment process across the business. Implementing an e-recruitment solution will enable Posten, which employs around 25,000 people, to attract and filter qualified candidates, dramatically reducing the HR department's administrative workload. The resulting resource savings will enable an increased focus on key tasks that support Posten's business strategy and continuing business growth.

"A thorough evaluation of the various e-recruitment solutions available lead us to make the decision to implement StepStone's e-recruitment solution, and we are extremely satisfied with that choice," says Inger Lovise Lunde, HR Director, Posten Norge As.

StepStone delivers world class technology and services for sourcing, recruiting, retaining, managing and developing talented people. StepStone's software will enable Posten to work more efficiently in its recruitment processes and empower it to establish a more targeted and professional communication with candidates, which will in turn strengthen Posten's internal and external employer brand.

"We are delighted that Posten has chosen StepStone as its e-recruitment supplier. Its choice strengthens and confirms our position as the leading solutions provider in e-recruitment and talent management, said Anders Koppang-Grønn, Country Manager, StepStone Solutions in Norway.
